Plague in Bay State Now Said to Be as Bad in Proportion to Population as in New York

The federal authorities and Massachusetts health officials today united in a battle against infantile paralysis in the Bay State following the announcement that the epidemic in Westfield and North Adams had spread until it

The federal health officer, who comes to Massachusetts from New York to visit the two towns most affected, will be assisted in his work by Dr. Charles H. Brown of the State Department of Health.

ANNOUNCE CONFERENCE.
 Dispatches from Washington received in Boston today announce that a conference of health officials called by the United States Public Health Service will meet in Washington next Thursday to arrange the details of a comprehensive, nation-wide plan to fight the dreaded baby scourge, which Every State Health Department in the country has been asked to send a representative.

Assistant Surgeon-General Ruckelshaus declared at Washington today that the conference would co-ordinate and standardize the methods of prevention.

The conference members may view the three little Asiatic monkeys now suffering the torments of the disease at Washington to further the efforts of the health authorities to determine its cause and find a cure for the plague.

DOUBT AS TO FUTURE.
Seven new "positive" cases of infantile paralysis were reported in Massachusetts today, together with one suspected case.
The new known cases of infantile

TRIESTE MANAGED BY ADVANCING ITALIANS

Trieste was taken at the point of the bayonet and the Italian flag hoisted on the city.

The correspondent of the Corriere d'Italia at the front was as follows:

"The Italian military establishment was bombarded for three days. A ring of fire enveloped the city. Two buildings housing troops were demolished. The members of the command were all killed or wounded. The lines along the front were heavy."

WAR SUMMARY

Operations, both real and problematical, along the Isonzo front today continued to hold a central position in war interest. The allied countries are aflame with delight over the fall of Gorizia to the Italians, the capture of the city being the premier effort of General Cadorna's armies.

It is too much, however, to expect the immediate fall of Trieste, Austria's most important seaport. Twenty-two miles by direct line and about thirty-five miles by road lie between Gorizia and Trieste, and undoubtedly the Italians must take time to consolidate themselves in their new position.

"One more river for to cross," sang Noah in the old Southern melody. That "one more river" in the case of the Italians is the Wipac, banked by great mountains from the 4,000-foot Brinabauer, near Adelsberg, to a range over 2,000 feet high all the way to Gradisca on the famed Isonzo. On these natural defenses, as we have already seen in other sections of the Alpine fighting line, there may be long, drawn-out warfare. Surely Trieste is not a prize to be taken in a day.

In France the struggle of millions from the sea to the Somme continues. The French content themselves with announcing further progress in the Hem wood in the Pas-de-Calais region. Beyond the incessant artillery combats along this entire front, there appears nothing new of note.

On the Galician front Stanislaw appears likely to be the next center of hot fighting, as the Russians are today but a few miles from that city, which has so often changed hands during the present war. A matter of nine miles or so in this region seems little to overcome and the real problem is how well the Austrians are prepared to defend the city. On the Stokhod and west of Lutsk the Teutons appear to be a little more than holding their own.

In the Caucasus the recapture of Bitlis and Mush by the Turks seems of importance in relieving Russian pressure on Mosul, the Turkish base on the Bagdad Railway. The Grand Duke Nicholas, however, in this campaign is striking more than one quarter, and impending operations may put a different light on the situation there.

Austrian trenches, wrought terrible destruction, opening wide a way for the Italian troops to go through in their charge.

TUNNELS UNDER SABOTAGE.

The military experts of the Tribune, describing the capture of Monte Mottino, one of the positions making up the defensive work known as the Gorizia bridgehead, say:

"The Austrians are still ignorant as to how they came to lose the position, and to which they attacked enormous importance, as it guarded the main approach to the fortress."

"Since last October the Italians had occupied the lower part of the hill, while the Austrians were masters of the crest."

"The Italian offensive was a surprise, and the Austrians were taken by surprise. The Italian offensive was a surprise, and the Austrians were taken by surprise. The Italian offensive was a surprise, and the Austrians were taken by surprise."

Over 4,000,000 Men in Germany Ready for Call to Front

Berlin, Aug. 10.—More than 4,000,000 new troops are constantly in training in the barracks throughout Germany. Over 4,000,000 men are available for service as a result of the raising of the age limit from forty-five to fifty years.

The youngsters of the 1917 class, which according to advance planning, is expected to yield close to 500,000 high standard troops, have not yet been called to the colors, and there is no possibility of their being mustered in before 1917 as normally in peace times.

Of the 1916 class, only 60 per cent, so far have been called to the colors. In addition, more than 1,000,000 mobilized men between the ages of nineteen and forty-five have still to be thrown in the field. They have been mustered and found physically fit, but have not yet been called to the colors.

These general figures are held in military circles to justify the War Minister's statement that Germany's requirements in men are fully covered for a war of indeterminate duration.

At last reports the Russians were only about five miles from the city and were pressing onward.

The army of General Lechitzky, which has been the most successful in the group commanded by General Brusilov, is driving northward against Stanislaw, overrunning all opposition by the Teutons.

The forces of General Lechitzky have made the following gains:

"On the right bank of the Korop, the Russian army has captured the town of Stanislaw, and has taken the mouth of the Zolota Liza."

"In the region of Stanislaw, we are pursuing the enemy in a northwesterly direction, and occupied the right bank of the Bystrzyca."

"On the left bank of Stanislaw and Nadzorna we have captured the railway junction, which had been held by the enemy."

"We have advanced in the region of the Holy Cross and Vasilivka."

"Chapman front—Violent fighting is in progress around Bittis and Bitlis in the Caucasus. The Russians have repulsed Turkish attacks."

"The capture of Stanislaw would be an overwhelming stroke in the eastern front of the Russian army. It would put the Russian army in a position to compel the immediate retreat of the Teutons from the city."

The Russians are concentrating their chief energies in central Galicia, where they are attacking the Teutons, who are holding the line with both hands.

Several attempts have been made to break the Russian line in the center of the front near Przemyśl, but the forces were small and the attacks were mostly in the nature of local attacks.

Power of Marshal von Hindenburg Limited.

Paris, Aug. 10.—After being in supreme command of all the armies of the east for a short time the power of Field Marshal von Hindenburg was limited by the German High Command.

The text of the official communiqué follows:

North of the Somme we made progress to the north of the line of the front. We brought in about 100 prisoners and captured a large number of machine guns. In addition six machine guns were captured. But the fighting was very hard and the losses were heavy.

French Report Progress at Hem Wood

Paris, Aug. 10.—Rain and fog are hindering military operations in the Somme region, the French War office announced today. Despite the weather, however, the French reported further progress at Hem Wood.

The German High Command, which used liquid fire in the attempt at Verdun, was repulsed by the French.

PROGRESS BY BRITISH CLAIMED

London, Aug. 10.—The British continue to assert steady progress against the German positions northwest of Passchendaele and further ground was gained there last night.

The British War Office in an official statement issued this afternoon stated that the night on the Somme front was generally quiet, except in the Passchendaele sector, where an advance was carried out. Several German prisoners were taken during the night.

The district where the combat are in progress lies on the high ridge across which passes the Albert-Passchendaele highway.

How Giant Zeppelin Would Look Over Boston Common

The great passenger and baggage carrying air liner, now nearing completion at Lake Constance, Germany, and intended for a trip to the United States, is 287 feet long, or more than one-seventh of a mile, and will carry a load of 88,000 pounds. It would stretch, as shown in the above sketch, from the State House diagonally across the Common to the junction of West and Tremont streets.

NEW BACKS BY FEET IN FIGHT THE BRIGGS CHECKED STATE PRISON

By International News Service, Berlin, Aug. 10.—British troops on the Somme front have launched fresh pressure against the German army of the Albert-Bapaume highway, but without any result.

The War Office in its statement today said that the British attacked on the Somme front, but that the German position at Bapaume-Le-Petit, but that it was repulsed.

On the Eastern front 342 more prisoners have been captured by the Germans in the region of Zarosca, it was said.

The text of the official report follows: "West front—Artillery firing being more intense than usual, the British attacks near Bapaume-Le-Petit, but that it was repulsed.

BEACH KIDS FIGHT RESCUED ON SINKING SCHOONER

Eight men, who were rescued from the sinking three-masted schooner R. R. Bowers of Boston on August 7, are now in the hands of the British.

The men were taken off the sinking schooner by the Canadian steamer Humber City, and a short time later were transferred to the Allan liner.

The vessel sailed from Halifax loaded with lumber for some port in the United Kingdom on July 24.

The vessel had been out of port only a few days when it was attacked by a German submarine.

Rain Interferes Again Braves Twin Bill Off

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

Should the Sox which are behind over the Pirates, especially on such occasions as when they are scheduled to play the Braves, make the late departure tomorrow, these two opponents will lock horns in a twin bill. Richard Lush will be in all probability, the first opener, which starts at 12:30 o'clock sharp. There is a 30 train out of town. In the second contest, George Tyler or Pat Ragan seems destined to hear the call.

Regarding the latter game, it is noted that it would appear as though the right-hander would be the one to start. On that account it is suggested that the Sox will have a better chance of winning the game. The Sox have won the series in the past, but it is not known whether they will win this time. The Sox have won the series in the past, but it is not known whether they will win this time.

Manager Callahan will be in all probability make at least one appearance. He will be in all probability make at least one appearance. He will be in all probability make at least one appearance. He will be in all probability make at least one appearance.

WATKINS' WIN. President Houghton was about this morning following the beautiful ball game in New York yesterday. He didn't have much to say regarding the game, but he did say that the Sox were a very good team. He didn't have much to say regarding the game, but he did say that the Sox were a very good team.

As is well known, the Sox and Pirates recently played in a deal whereby the former team acquires the services of catcher Art Wilson in return for Bill Fischer. The deal seems now to be a very good one. The Sox have won the series in the past, but it is not known whether they will win this time.

Magates Back Up Umpires at Meeting and Order Players to Refrain from Making Noise.

New York, Aug. 10.—At a four hour conference at National League headquarters here, the club owners adopted several new rules and upheld at every point the umpiring corps against charges of favoritism and inefficiency brought against it. A protest, signed by several hundred Boston fans, charging discrimination against the Braves, was not even considered.

The following new rules were adopted: 1.—Umpire coaching from the players' bench will be restricted. The players will be allowed to discuss remarks only to members of their own team. No word shall be spoken either to, or about, an umpire, civil player or spectator.

2.—The official scorekeeper must be notified not less than five minutes before a game of the lineup of the team. It was decided, as a token of appreciation to Robert E. Wood, president of the National League, a fitting testimonial shall be given him by the players of a double-header on Ebbets Field, Brooklyn.

The following managers were present at the meeting, which was presided over by President John T. Tener: D. H. Houghton, Boston; Charles H. Ebbets, Brooklyn; Charles W. Weaver, New York; Schuyler B. Hinton, St. Louis; William P. Baker, Philadelphia. The only absentee was Harry F. Byrd, of Pittsburgh, former president of the league and owner of the Temple cup, was a visitor at the meeting.

Mean to Hold Lead Champs Full of "Pep"

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Having fought their way to the top of the standing of the World's Champions, players to remain there. Manager Bill Carrigan will spur his men on to strenuous action that they may return to the home park in first place. President J. J. Linnin is satisfied that his team will repeat. He figures that the return to form of several of his pitchers points in that direction. The boys are also hitting well.

FOSTER MAY TWINK. Carrigan was undecided this morning what pitcher would be sent against the White Sox. He may use "Rube" Roth out of turn, as the massive southpaw can stand plenty of work and wants to get in the thing line. Then, Foster looked so very good in St. Louis Sunday he may be used. Anyhow, it appears a certainty that either Roth or Foster will do the heavy work.

The Red Sox won yesterday's game and made it two out of three in the series because they carried the White Sox to two fast clips. Going into extra innings it became simply a matter of whether Shor would break before or whether "Death Valley" would outlast "Tall Brute". SHOR HOLDS TIGHT. Shor was pitching with greater effectiveness at the South than at the start and there were never was an indication the rapid pace was telling upon him. There could be no doubt that Shor would meet the hard-hitting Red Sox.

Cady is rapidly developing into the most feared man on the Boston club among the fans of Chicago. When last it as it should be, for the big fellow was the hitting star Tuesday, as well as yesterday. It was Cady who scored the first run yesterday, and so kept the Bostonians in the fight after nine innings when he played, and it was Cady who drove in the winning run in the tenth.

This big fellow may be a minor in some spots, but he's a white in Chicago, all right. The Shor-Sox sets was a copy and, especially interesting to the Sox, was the first time since the Sox won the World's Cup that the Sox had a pitcher who was a visitor at the meeting.

FORMER AMATEURS WILL CLASH AT C. A. C.

It smacks of a packed house at the Commercial A. C. tomorrow night when Mike Sullivan of East Boston and Mike Crowley of Malden, two former Sox players, first among the amateurs, come together in the twelve-round windup event. Both boys have long followed and the rival "out-ers" are arranging to turn out in force. Jim McDonald of Northbrook is down to meet Kenneth Halliburton in the semi-final. Northbrook was in the semi-final of the two big boys in the final match. The winner of the semi-final match will be the champion of the amateurs. Young Lewis and Jack Berry are the pair booked to clash in the two six-round numbers.

ENTRY LIST CLOSES FOR POLO TOURNEY

New York, Aug. 10.—Entries for the polo tournament at Philadelphia, September 6 to 12, inclusive, will be tabulated today. It is expected the list will be complete. Most of the circuit is in the jurisdiction of the National "Polo" Association have been heard from, but Chairman Herbert has not yet received word as to whether or not entries were on the way from California. Even in case the far West is not represented, sufficient teams will be on hand to make the tournament one of the most important held in the East this season.

SHAWNEE OPEN TO HAGEN

Metropolitan Open Champion Wins First Money in Invitation Tourney—McDonald Second.

Shawnee, Pa., Aug. 9.—Walter Hagen of Rochester, N. Y., the Metropolitan open champion, added another tournament to his long list of victories when he won the Shawnee open invitation with a total score of 258 strokes.

Robert McDonald of Buffalo got second money when he nosed out Jim Barnes of Whitefish and Gil Nicholls of Great Neck by making a 72 in the last round. Barnes finished third, two strokes in front of Nicholls and Emory French.

The Rochester professional was in the lead when they started in the morning, by a margin of one over Barnes, and, as the play progressed, their score could be compared stroke for stroke. Hagen had no trouble running away from the Philadelphia and increased his lead by two at the end of the morning round.

The surprise of the day came when Nicholls faded around the sectional total of 71, which brought him up to a tie with the leader.

This was the best round of the tournament and Nicholls' stroke rose with a jump when the afternoon play began.

HOT LINERS

By FRANK G. MENKE.

Even Walter Johnson could not stop the fast going Browns.

The Red Sox are shaming on top this morning. It took them twelve innings to down the White Sox.

The Athletics could not shatter the record for defeat. After trying it with 20 they turned on their Tigers and landed them. It was the first victory in the West this season for the Mack men.

Smith's home run with a man on base gave the Indians the game from the Yankees.

The Dodgers gained a half a game on both the Braves and Phillies. The Braves were idle, while the Phillies split a double header with the Reds, while the Dodgers were whitewashing the Cubs.

The recent test for the Dodgers will come Saturday and the following week when they meet the Braves and then journey westward.

R. I. TENNIS IS NOW IN SEMI-FINAL

Providence, Aug. 10.—The Rhode Island State tennis championship was brought up to the semi-finals in the morning with Waters, Holmes, Dana and Wheelwright winning their matches. Two rounds in the doubles were also concluded.

TYPOS COUNT BIG SCORES. Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 10.—In the Union Printers' baseball tournament, St. Paul defeated Cincinnati, 17-10, and Chicago won from Pittsburgh, 7-1.

Corinthian Y. C. Races Big Entry for Events

Marblehead, Aug. 10.—The three days' midsummer regatta of the Corinthian Yacht Club opens this afternoon, and it is estimated that more than 100 boats will be seen in action. The midsummer series of the Corinthian Yacht Club is the banner regatta of the season, more boats participating in these races than in any other regatta anywhere along the coast. It is nothing unusual for 175 yachts to race in Corinthian Yacht Club midsummer regatta, and in 1914 the popular Marblehead club set a new record for entries, when 302 boats took part in the opening day of the three days' races. This is the largest number of boats ever known to have sailed in a regatta.

ALL BOATS REPRESENTED. The Corinthian Yacht Club has races scheduled for practically every variety of racing boat. There will be twenty-nine classes start this afternoon, and William L. Carlton, chairman of the regatta committee, predicts that at least 150 yachts will compete, but the chairman advanced the opinion that he did not believe that the record of 1914 would be threatened during the present series.

THE ELLEN A. WINS. The Ellen won her first race of the season in the "D" class race for the standing, displacing the Outlook III, which was unable, because of a broken throat, to start the race.

All of the Corinthian Yacht Club races will be started from inside the harbor, and the winning gun will go at 2:15 while the preparatory gun will be fired at 2:00. The Outlook IV was the first boat to round Pig Rock buoy, but when the fleet reached the Southeast breakers, the Horizon was in sixth place. LOOK AT FOOD SAFETY FIRST. The baseball fan was falling fast. He was about to breathe his last. "The idea you have brought to me have saved the sitting of death," said he.

"The Sox are Best!" And now I want to pass away. Before three days another day, I want to perish with a smile. I want to kick the bucket while the Sox are best!

Far be it from me to rain on the parade, but we can't remember when the Sox were in the lead.

Looking over recent baseball results, we have a hunch that Fielder Jones may win another pennant for the White Sox.

Far be it from me to offer a suggestion to an expert body of experts in the National Commission, but when the Sox are playing, why not disengage with the umpire and hire a referee?

Connie Mack does not require a Nick Atkinson or a Herman Schaefer to amuse the populace. The Athletics are comical enough.

There is one rule to be found with Connie Mack's sublimity. It can summarize, but it can't come up for air.

Reports from the front tell us that apoplexy is being used in the vicinity of Danbury in France. An apoplexy boat has been used in the vicinity of the Danbury in Dudley street for several weeks.

Being handed by a hater is not a pleasant experience, but how would you like to be abused by a hater?

Mike Dowling talks at ball players are human.

THEY ARE HYPNOTIZED. You're a strange and mystic guy, Fielder Jones.

Elena Keeps Up Winning Form at Newport

Newport, R. I., Aug. 10.—With her last victory in a another of foam as she headed to a stiff roasting breeze, Merton P. Plant's schooner yacht, the Elena, traveling at a speed of twelve knots, crossed the finish line off Brenton Reef, lightship an easy winner of the Kings Cup.

She was the victor Tuesday, and she has honors to spare. The Elena, a three-masted schooner, had five aloft, took the lead soon after noon from the second yacht, Cornelius Van Dyke, a four-masted schooner.

By special arrangement the "fortie," which sailed for a special cup offered by Commodore Joseph J. Baker, Jr., sailed over a course of twenty-eight miles instead of thirty-eight miles. The winner was the Squaw, owned by J. S. Lawrence. Her actual time was 47m. 17s.

TWO DISABLED. The Almiras and Clara, which have been having a pretty much their own way all season in Class D, were both disabled and unable to finish. The Clara carried away her mast at the lower mark, while the Almiras withdrew soon after the Clara met with her accident.

Although the brisk northeast wind and the small size of the fleet for the P and Bar Harbor boats, it was somewhat of a surprise that so many minor accidents occurred, which were not noticed by the judges.

GERMANY SCHAEFER PLAYED IN CENTRE. Cleveland, Aug. 10.—So badly off as manager Donovan of the Yankees for Clevelanders that when Arthur Heffner pulled up lame in yesterday's game with the Yankees he was called to put "Germany" Schaefer in center field. The veteran fanned his one time up.

Miss Harris M. Is First Home in William Stake

Pittsburgh, Aug. 10.—After two postponements on account of rain, the opening program of the Grand Circuit meeting at Brumley Island Track was run off.

The feature was the $2,000 William stake for 2:27 pacers, which was won by the Indianapolis filly, Miss Harris M., a $20 to $10 choice over the field.

Mitchell, the $22 to $15 choice for the $2,000 trot, won the first heat, but was beaten in the next two by Bonington.

Peter Lock, favorite for the pacing division of the Matron stake, fell when in the lead in the home stretch, Rose Magee winning. As both the other starters were shut out, the entire purse went to the filly.

The balance of the program will be raced off in the next three days, several events having been declared off.

JUNIOR POLO FINALS ON. Narragansett Pier, R. I., Aug. 10.—The finals in the junior polo championship, with Point Judith and Meadowbrook third as the contestants, will be played today. Yesterday the Altam Redbirds defeated the Cooperstown team, 12-11.

Boston Players Lose on Courts at Seabright

Seabright, N. J., Aug. 10.—A. Howard and Voshell, Brooklyn, scored an upset in the second round of the Abellus cup singles by defeating N. W. Miles, Boston, on the turf courts of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club, 6-3, 6-4, 6-5.

Following the match George M. Church defeated Voshell in the semi-final round, 6-1, 10-8.

William M. Johnston, national champion, defeated his place in the singles, stating that he wished to reserve himself for the national championship tournament.

J. S. Hoffman, Boston, advanced through Johnston's default only to be beaten in the semi-finals by W. L. Davis, national clay court champion, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2.

F. Kamagawa, champion of Japan, won from Leonard Beckman and Edwin P. Laird.

DAY STATE BOYS BRAND KICKING MULE OUTLAW

By BERT FORD.

Second Massachusetts Brigade Headquarters, El Paso, Tex., Aug. 10.—Comet, one of the four pack mules attached to the First Ambulance Company of Massachusetts, has been branded with the most deplorable record known in the army picket line. She has been pronounced an outlaw and mauler, which means that she may be sent back to the general corral or shot.

Comet kicked another of Captain George F. Keenan's men and broke his jaw, and she broke a man's leg the day before and kicked another man in the back the day before that. No amount of coaxing or sugar or chastisement appears to affect Comet, because "she was born naturally evil," as the cook says. Captain Keenan refuses to make public the victim's names.

Colonel Lewis, chief surgeon of the regular army, said today that the Massachusetts Signal Corps not only had a model camp, but that Major Harry O. Chase's men were the first inoculated and vaccinated against typhoid and smallpox as an organization.

It was reported today that the National Guard units from Massachusetts and the other states now on the border will be moved back into Texas 100 miles or more to an Indian reservation, where elaborate measures will be held the month of October without leaving the frontier.

The Fifth Regiment Band is to furnish music Sunday evening at the first union service held by the Massachusetts brigade since reaching the border. The Fifth, Eighth and Ninth are invited. Chaplain Keenan of the Fifth and Chaplain Edwards of the Eighth have also invited Chaplain O'Connor of the Ninth to participate.

Colonel Willis W. Stover of the Fifth has one of the most attractive regimental headquarters on the border and it is guarded, besides an armed escort, by "Clementine," a war dog, which makes friends at once with men in uniform and snarls at all civilians.

The Federal examination of the Ninth Regiment has been finished and the commander of Colonel Edward L. Logan's command will relieve the Fifth Regiment outposts along a ninety-five-mile front.

Private Pickering of Battery C of Lawrence, who disappeared ten days ago, was located by a sheriff in Yaborn, Tex., after an absence of ten days. The more day and he would have been called a courier.

Major John B. H. Woodworth of the field hospital has issued a decree against dog manure. His orderlies, Privates Conway and Fandel, rounded up a dozen canines for the men in the tents who longed for pets. Major Woodworth says the menagerie is a menace to health.

Ninth Relieves Eighth at Border Outposts
El Paso, Tex., Aug. 10.—Orders have been issued directing the Ninth Infantry to relieve the Eighth on outpost duty. The companies at Laredo, Brown, N. M., Camanche, N. M., Comanche, N. M., El Paso, and Alamo, N. M., were relieved this morning. The Ninth left Camp Clinton at 7 a. m.

The companies at Yuleta, Clint, Fabens and Fort Hancock and outposts of C Company at Pecos and Foraker will be relieved on Friday, the troops from the Ninth leaving camp at 7 a. m.

It is expected that the movement will be entirely completed by Friday night, and the troops of the Eighth will all be under canvas at Camp Clinton once more. Transportation both ways will be by motor truck.

The following enlisted men of K Company of the Second, Company of the First, and Company of the Second, were promoted by a regimental order: Corporals Harold S. Ryan, John H. Ryan, and Benjamin J. Robinson, Jr., to sergeants; and privates Benjamin J. Lippert, Ralph T. Wright, and Eugene J. P. Carver to corporals. Carver was recently transferred from the First Corps Cavalry to the Eighth in order to see service on the border.

As soon as the troops return, physical examinations will be started in the Eighth Infantry. It is expected that the troops will be found in very good condition, as the Ninth Regiment is reported to have lost less than 100 men since its first deployment.

Men of Second Hurt in Cycle Accident

Columbus, N. M., Aug. 10.—Chaplain Walter S. Barker of the Second, Corporal Roger W. Hayward of the regimental postoffice and Private William Lowe of the machine gun company were very close to serious accident when a motorcycle which they were riding left a bridge over a small ditch. Corporal Hayward received injuries to his back, while Mr. Barker sustained slight injuries to his left hand.

Circuit Court of Commerce, 1 of Northampton has received an unfavorable opinion as first lieutenant of the regular army for border service in the desert zone.

The regiment has not been paid yet and many of the soldiers are financially embarrassed.

What Government Ownership Does for the Indians

We Do Not Want to Be Indians, but We Do Want and Need Government Ownership

Copyright, 1916, Star Company

WE recommend to thoughtful readers the following article by Charles Ferguson.

It proves that where the government FEELS RESPONSIBILITY it does the work that is needed. It proves that the government can do the things that selfish interests say it cannot do.

If the people were determined on government ownership, at least one-half of the petty annoyances, injustices, extortions and difficulties of modern life would be eliminated. Read carefully what follows:

Trying It On the Red Man

By CHARLES FERGUSON

WHAT SELLER of Texas is the biggest farmer, stockman and country banker in the world. He also teaches six thousand children what he thinks they ought to know—which includes how to earn a living. He runs high schools and colleges, but he takes particular pleasure in a multitude of primary schools, each presided over by a dominie and his wife—who mothers the children and cooks their mid-day meal.

Besides all this Judge Sells is attorney at law for more than three hundred thousand people in their disputes with the outer world. When they quarrel with one another, he is usually judge and jury, too. There are many other things that this modern Noah, Abraham, Joseph and Moses does for his chosen people. It would take a column merely to catalogue them all.

The fact is Mr. Sells is Indian Commissioner in the Department of the Interior at Washington. The Indians are "wards of the nation," and the commissioner stands for the nation. The nation is supposed to be civilized and the Indians uncivilized. And the commissioner is expected to show the Indians how we do the thing—the thing that is called being civilized.

Here is the interesting point: In trying to show the Indians how to do it we can learn to do it a great deal better ourselves. A study of the operations of the Indian Bureau yields a great many suggestions as to the fine things we could do for ourselves. If we could only find a way to set up in Boston, Oklahoma and Cripple Creek a government as intelligent and as enthusiastic for progress as the Indian Bureau is. Of course, we in Boston—or in any other American town—would not care to have Judge Sells and his deputies boss us around. Still we are bound in honesty to face the following proposition: If we are desiring equally in selecting men out of our own number to impose the natural laws of industry, commerce, communication, transportation, and so on, upon the Indians, why don't we do the same for ourselves?

An Indian child is taught how to raise corn and cotton, how to ride and swim and build a shack. Why should not white children be taught these things?

An honest Indian can borrow six hundred dollars from the Great White Chief to stock his farm and set himself up as housekeeper. Why is the White Chief less considerate of his own sons?

The Indian is protected from land-sharks and stock-jockers. Why should not the rest of us be protected?

The Indian understands that in the nature of things a highway or a water-course is a public affair. Why can't everybody in the United States be made to understand that?

What is civilization, anyhow? We are trying to give it to the Indians, but have we got it ourselves? Certainly we can have no very strong hold on it until we have grasped the idea that there are natural laws of social well-being, laws that we neither made nor can unmake, and that liberty and democracy consist in obeying these laws—even in being compelled to obey them.

We do no violence to our democratic faith in imposing these laws upon the Indians—anybody that is able to do it has a right to impose them upon anybody else. The trouble with us is that we do not sufficiently understand them or respect them.

That is the reason our railroads run to receiverships, our mines and forests are raped by private greed and our common stock of steam-power and water-power is mostly turned to other than public ends.

The white man must do for himself what he has done for the red man.

If the Unborn Generation Could Pass Laws We Should Progress Rapidly

IT is to be wished that the public might understand better the importance of the metric system—a system that would do for us in our weights and measures what the decimal system does for us now in money.

Each of us knows how much better it is to have a dollar divided into one hundred cents than to have something like the English pound, with its shillings, pence and halfpence. The metric system, which is the decimal system under another name, saves time.

It would save as much time in weights and measures as it does in money.

But those of us that are grown up KNOW and understand our present old-fashioned, stupid system. We do not know the metric system.

And being grown up, and having control, we do not want the trouble of LEARNING.

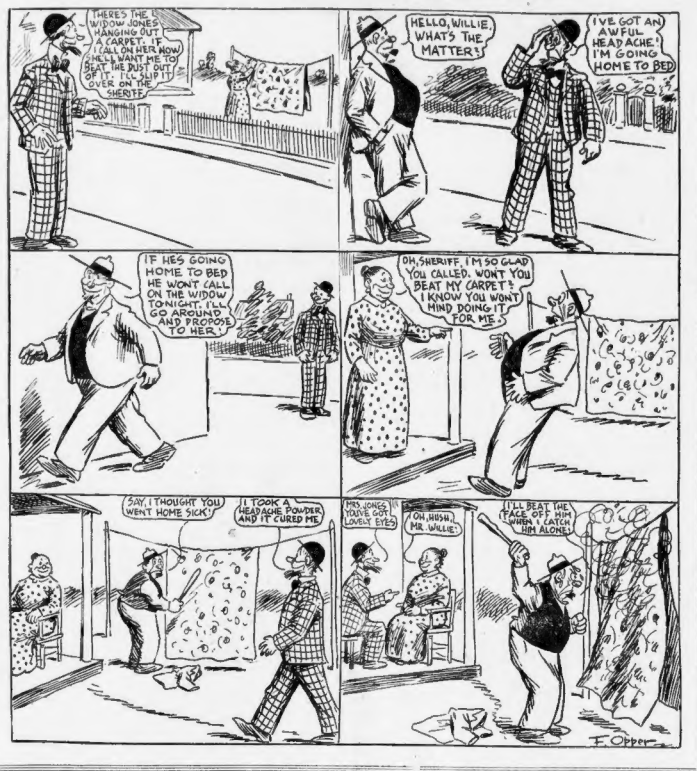

If the next generation could make laws we should have the metric system tomorrow, for it would save the next generation time and trouble.

But, dull and reluctant to learn as we are, the metric system will probably have to wait until the next generation, and then perhaps until the next.

Some Heated Remarks

By William F. Kirk

WHILE stringing together their Don'ts for Hot Weather the doctors leave little to do. They warn you that eating is terribly heating. And drinking is harmful to you. They tell you that walking or working or talking will burn up your blood as a rule; They tell you what NOT to do when you're hot, But not what to do to keep cool.

If doctors were careless and dealt in hot air less. Perhaps we'd forget it is hot. But always we're reading of Hints Worth Your Heeding. And things we should eat and should not. When mortals are sweating and fuming and fretting. It's very refreshing to know We ought to stop thinking and eating and drinking. While Summer is giving her show.

We mustn't wear collars or hustle for dollars, Or ruzzle ice tea with our meals; We mustn't eat fat food or this food or that food, Or walk with our weight on our heels. When down the sun blades and dazzles and dazes Beware of its glare and its heat; We mustn't be loafers on beds or on sofas, We mustn't stay long on our feet.

Ice cream is chilly and only the silly Would eat it, the doctors declare; Hot coffee is heating, cold milk worse than sauté, And salads are dangerous fare. But eating and drinking keep mortals from shrieking, And so, while the turkey we carve, We'll swear by the ladder. It can't be much harder To die of a sunstroke than starve.

Thoughts by the Way

Perhaps you are envying that man with a better position than you have. You say ever think it's likely he's willing to trade with you? When you are having a good time with your family he may be grinding away at some work which he must get through right away. He may go home when you do, but he may have to work many hours into the night to figure out the problems for the next day in order to keep his job. If you can get no recreation or enjoyment out of life what is there to it? Would you be willing to work as he does? Of course you don't know his incentive, but few would apply themselves as he does, and incidentally, few will climb to the heights he may before he lets up. Do not be so mean that you, envy a man the job he has worked so hard to get and to keep. If you are not willing to concentrate and keep your nose to the grindstone, as he does, don't snivel if you do not catch up.

Our Teeth in Peace and in War

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects

PART ONE
A MAN hence into life by his teeth. When we talk about losing our grip it is often our dental grip that we mean. So vital an essential does the law regard the tools of a man's trade that it will not permit them to be taxed, or seized for debt; but the teeth are the most vitally essential and important tools that humanity ever had—the tools of our most universal and constant trade, chewing. With the longest noose, the steadiest employment and no layoffs, which we follow without a break every day in the week, every month in the year, from the cradle to the grave. We break the habit of life with our gums, and we finish it in the same condition—if we live long enough. But we want a good, long period of "well-being" feeding and fighting in between.

If we are not getting it, let's our own fault, because our teeth stand right out in the very front of our faces, where we can get at them without the slightest trouble, and do anything that we please with them. Their importance is only equalled by their prominence—and accessibility. They are first in peace, first in war and first in the mouths of our countrymen, and whenever we will we can do them good.

Just at present they seem to be suffering from unemployment, though probably not so severely as commonly reported. At all events, it is quite easy to remedy, because their demand is not far more of the expensive and luxury force to work on, but for the coarser and tougher and cheaper. Let children chew the crusts of bread, and graham and whole-wheat crackers, and almonds and other accessible nuts—which does NOT include peanuts—and ripe, raw apples and pears, and the coarser vegetables, like celery and lettuce, which have plenty of "chewing" to them. An occasional "treat" of raw turnip or carrots, and even of unripe apples and other beloved green things which make a grow-up shoulder, may do their teeth more good than they do their stomachs harm. And a moderate amount of chewing gum may even be regarded with a lenient eye.

Cereals which are eaten wet and those of all sorts and sundries should be decidedly restricted, and even the sacred "bread and milk" of our childhood days has fallen right into the ban. If the two are mixed together long before eating, children should take their milk and other liquids wet and their foods dry, as far as possible, for the sake of their teeth; and it will usually improve the condition of their stomachs and bowels as well.

Adults should make a point of taking plenty of "roughening" or "roughage," as the farmers call it, such as hard crackers and salads and the seeds of fruits and vegetables as well as raw and nuts and raw fruits.

In-Shoots

It's a waste of energy to make hay if one travels in an auto. The rarest of all jewels in the boy who can appreciate his mother. When the car turns turtle, of course, the rider is in the soup. If a patriotic man who can keep up official enthusiasm when there is no salary attached to the job. The woman who isn't curious is usually in the hands of the undertaker.

On Necessity of Both Teachers and Pupils Regarding Education of the Memory as a Distinct and Definite Object of Scholarly Pursuit—Mrs. Hetty Green's Exceptional Power

By Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst

AN interesting statement which Colonel Green is reported to have made in regard to his mother, the late Mrs. Hetty Green, is to the effect that her financial success was due to her exceptional power of memory, and that the experience of her many years were so distinctly present to her mind as more and more to serve as safe guides to action. Perhaps this was no more true of Mrs. Green than of others who have been distinguished in the world of science, and that much that has been remarked in regard to her career would have remained unspoken except for the fact of her sex. Be that as it may, the statement made by Colonel Green is not that of account less interest, and serves as a text upon which some judicious words may be written as to the efficiency of memory and the inadequate attention given to its cultivation in the ordinary course of instruction.

Very much of the attention of pupils in the higher and lower grades is devoted to making the mind acquainted with facts of history and science. There are other matters that come in for a share of the pupil's attention, but a great deal of his time is spent in learning things that are intended to be remembered with a view to being utilized as circumstances of later years may suggest and require. These facts that are learned are stored in what we call the memory.

The memory may therefore be conceived of as a receptacle in which we pack away the things which we have gathered in from off those fields of inquiry which are the pupils' hunting grounds. If now that receptacle is not so carefully and closely constructed as to be able to hold securely, it is deposited in it, there is little to show for the time spent in the hunting and the depositing.

That is surely a reasonable and most practical way of regarding the matter. If our memory will not hold what we put into it, to what advantage will be the trouble we go to in gathering material for it? It is a fair question to put to any high school or college graduate. How much of what you learned during your years of study is so distinctly in your mind today, or so easily within the reach of your powers of recollection that you can recover it and make present use of it?

To confess to our inability so to do is to acknowledge that our memory is so loose-jointed a contrivance that what we put into our knowledge-box at the top has been, during all the intervening years, coming out at the bottom. If that be the case with us, then, while we were educating our power of getting knowledge we were not also educating our power of retaining knowledge, and could, therefore, only put our knowledge into a leaky vessel.

Consequently a man after all his years of school and college experience is left in the same helpless condition that the child is at birth.

A well ordered course of instruction will, of course, include various lines of discipline. It will embrace among others the training of the reasoning faculty, the power of analysis, the artistic and the moral sense, etc. Our only plea is that while those departments of training should not be neglected, the power of quick and vivid recollection is an absolute essential to complete mental equipment.
